Copenhagen, March 31.

THE 11 of the next month will be held a general Rendezvous of our Forces near Elsenore; the other night a Swedish party passed the Sound, and thought to have burnt the provision of Hay and Straw that hath been made there for the use of the Army, but they failed in their design. In the mean time here are strange and various discourses concerning the Treasons that are charged upon the Chancellor Griffenfelt, which we shall ere long know the truth of, for it's said his Majesty intends him a publick Tryal. The other day certain Instruments were carried into the Castle, which are made use of for the wracking of Criminals; and this makes people think, that the Chancellor may be put to it; most people believe that his Crime must have been very great, that the King is so highly incensed against him.

Vienna, March 29. The Emperor hath declared the Duke Adolphus of Holstein, and the Marquis of Baden Dourlach Mareschals de Camp of his Armies, though the former will continue to serve the King of Denmark, and the latter in the command of General of the Troops of the Cireles. His Imperial Majesty has likewise given the command of the right wing of his Cavalry, to the Duke of Saxen Lawenburgh; and that of the left wing, to the Count de Caprara, adding to the former the Regiment of the Duke of Bournonville, who goes to command the Spanish Forces in Catalonia. The 24 instant, the Marquis of Baden Dourlach parted hence in great diligence for Hailbron, where is to be held the general Rendezvous of the Troops of the Empire; the Count de Caprara, and the Count d'Arch General of the Artillery, are likewise parted from hence. In the mean time great quantities of Corn are daily Transported from the Hereditary Countries, towards Francfort, Strasburgh, &c. for the subsistence of the Imperial Army this Campagne; and it's said that the Count de Caplieres, the Commissary General, hath signified hither, that he hath already made a provision sufficient to maintain the Emperors Forces five or six months. The Bishop of Gurck, the chief of the Embassy designed from hence to Nimeguen, will go to the Army very suddenly, in order to his continuing his journy from thence, according to the likelihood there shall be of forming the Congress. The Empress continues extreme ill, so that we have not any hopes of her recovery. The Empress Dowager is going to Nicolsbourg, to visit the Queen Dowager of Poland, who has been ill of the Small Pox.

Eslingen, April 3. Prince Hermin of Baden having received advice that the French were putting themselves into a posture to relieve Philipsburgh, gave on the 31 past the necessary orders for the drawing together such Troops as are quartered in the parts adjacent, that passing the Rhine, and joining such as are posted on that side, they might be able to oppose the design of the Enemy. The same day, viz. the 31, arrived at Lauterburgh two great Boats laden with Hay, Oats, and other Provisions from Strasburgh, and the day following likewise arrived there 100 Wagons with the same Lading from the Dutchy of Wirtemberg, so that our Troops have sufficiently wherewithall to subsist, till such time as they may find Forage in the field. This day the Duke of Lorrain arrived here, upon the advice that had been given by the Prince of Baden, of the intention of the Enemy to succor Philipsburgh; and this night, or to morrow morning early, he will march with the Troops that have assembled here to Lauterburgh, to pass the Rhine there, and observe the Enemy.

Strasburgh, April 3. The first instant the Duke of Luxemburgh arrived at Saverne, bringing with him 4 Regiments, viz. that of Enguien, Condé, la Ferte and Champagne and yesterday he marched from Saverne with 6000 Men, and six pieces of Cannon to Haguenaw, where stand ready several Wagons laden with Proyisions, which he will Convoy to Philipsburgh: at the same time the Mareschal de Rochefort is marched with a Body of Horse only, by the way of the Mountains towards Berg Zaberne, to get into Philipsburgh on that side: on the other hand, the Duke of Lorrain has assembled a good Body of Men together at Lauterburgh, to oppose this design of the French, so that in our next Letters we may be able to give you an account of some Action. The Governor of Haguenaw having stopped certain Wagons laden with Merchandizes belonging to the Inhabitants of this City, our Magistrates had resolved to proceed by way of Reprizals against those of Haguenaw, but that Monsieur Verjus the French Envoy has assured them, that the said Merchandizes shall be forthwith restored.

Trevers, April 3. Two dayes since twelve Imperial Companies, who have for some time had their quarters in our Neighborhood, came into this place, so that at present our Garison is composed of 6500 Men.

Cologne, April 7. The Duke of Newburgh continues his Levies, but at present they advance but slowly: We are told that the Duke intends not only to go to his Countries on the Danube, but likewise to Vienna, where it's reported a Marriage is treating between the Prince of Newburgh, and the Emperors sister. By our Letters from Manheim of the 31 past, we have advice, that the French approached towards Philipsburgh, with intention to put a supply into that place; and since we have Letters of the 4th instant from the same place, confirming the former advices, adding, that just upon the coming away of the Post, they had an account, that the Enemy appeared near Weissenbourg, and that the Duke of Lorrain was marching towards them. From Strasburgh of the 3d instant they write the same thing, with these farther circumstances, that the Enemy marched towards Lauterburgh in two Bodies; the one of 4000 Men, both Horse and Foot, commanded by the Duke of Luxemburgh from Saverne by the way of Haguenaw; and the other of Horse only, under the conduct of the Mareschal de Rochefort, who by the way of the Mountains marshed between Berg-Zaberne and Anweyler.
